SIMPLICITY WILL MARK THE FUNERAL OF SENATOR LONG

Organizer of the "Share-the-Wealth" Clubs Will Officiate

PERIOD OF MOURNING

Governor Oscar Allen Among
The Official Pall-Bearers

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 12—
"Every man a king, every woman a queen!" Huey Long, dead from an assassin's bullet, lay today beyond the realization of his Utopian political preachments, but the verse he made his campaign song will be his funeral dirge.

The final tribute of his State to the memory of its most phenomenal modern political figure, will be marked by utmost simplicity today. At four o'clock the Senator's body will be borne from its bier in the Capitol to the sunken garden in the center of the Capitol's greenward where it will rest permanently.

The official pall-bearers include Governor Oscar Allen, a life-long friend upon whom the mantle of party leadership had devolved. The Rev. Gerald Smith, organizer of Long's "share-the-wealth" clubs, will officiate.

An official period of mourning, proclaimed by Governor Allen, was in effect until 8:30 a. m. Friday. State House offices were closed.

Radio Star Shot Dead

Downingtown, Sept. 12—Pretty Evelyn Hoyer, musical comedy and radio star, was found shot to death today
in the farm home of Henry Huddleston Rogers, Jr., disinherited son of a deceased multi-millionaire oil magnate.
Although they had a witness whose story bears out the story of suicide,
police took Rogers and his friend,
William J. Kelley, 35, of Union City, N. J., into custody and held them without bail on a technical charge of suspicion of murder.

Three guns were found in Rogers'
bedroom where the young actress's body was found lying on the floor.
Beneath the bed was a 45-calibre pistol from which the death-dealing bullet was fired. A second 45-calibre pistol lay on the floor beside a shotgun.
The shooting occurred, police said,
shortly before last midnight and followed a quarrel which culminated in Miss Hoyer's declaration she was
"through" and was going back to New York. After a verbal battle, police learned, Rogers refused to give Miss Hoyer money or permit her to use the telephone. To thwart her attempt to communicate with friends in New York, police were advised, Rogers ripped all the telephone wires away from the outside of the house.

The fatal shot was fired, according to Claude Batten of Lyndell farms, while he was talking in the living room of the house with Rogers and Kelley, who has a business establishment in New York City. Batten told police Rogers had been drinking heavily and that he witnessed a part of the quarrel between the showgirl and Rogers.
Miss Hoyer had been Rogers' houseguest for the last week on his vast Indian Run farm situated at Lyndell, six miles from Downingtown.

REV. ADAMS TO SPEAK

The Rev. Howard Adams, Bensalem
Methodist Church, will deliver the sermon tonight at the 119th anniversary service of Bensalem A. M. E. Church.
His choir will also be present. All pastors and congregations of the community are invited to attend. A special feature will be pentecostal hymns sung by two young women from the Pentecostal Church of Kensington, with guitar accompaniment. Refreshments will be sold after the meeting.

SIXTH WARD VOTERS

Yesterday the Bucks County Court
at Doylestown in response to a petition changed the polling place in the sixth ward, second precinct, from property of Charles Karp on Hayes
street to the store of Charles Karp, 1834 Farragut avenue. The Court stated that the former polling place in this district had recently been demolished, so that it is impossible to hold any elections therein, and so therefore a change was ordered.

MOTHERS MEET

The Mothers' Association of the Bristol public schools resumed its regular monthly meetings last evening in the school auditorium, Wilson avenue,
with Mrs. Alfred McLaughlin presiding. Business was followed by a social hour, and refreshments served in the cafeteria. The ladies of the second ward with Mrs. Wright as chairwoman had charge of the refreshments.

For Republican Nomination
COUNTY TREASURER
Bucks County

Edward Biester, a successful business man of many years standing, responding to the requests of his friends and neighbors, will submit his name for the Republican nomination at the Primary Election for County Treasurer.

Mr. Biester resides at Trevoise, Bensalem Township, where he has taken an active part in the civic and political life of the community.

One of his outstanding civic activities was in 1925 when he took a leading part in organizing the Trevoise Fire Company of which he is now the Treasurer. In 1926 he became Justice of the Peace of Bensalem Township.
He was elected on the Republican ticket as Tax Collector for the township and served 1926-1929, both years inclusive.

Although retired from active business he takes a deep interest in the activities of his community, being a charter member of the Trevoise Horticultural Society.

The office of County Treasurer, which is most widely known by the general public, receives all monies paid to the county and pays, subject to the orders of the County Commissioners, all monies due by the county.
Mr. Biester's long and successful business career, pre-eminently fits him for nomination and election, which brought about his endorsement by the Republican Harmony Primary Campaign Committee.

Lest We Forget on Constitution Day!

(New York American, Sept. 9, 1935)

Those Congressmen who are going to participate in the one hundred and forty-eighth celebration of the adoption of the Constitution on September 17 would do well to familiarize themselves with these passages in that great document:

"All legislative powers herein granted shall be vested in a CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES which shall consist of a Senate and House of Representatives.

"All bills for raising revenue shall ORIGINATE IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, but the Senate
may propose or concur with amendments, as on other bills.

"The CONGRESS shall have power to LAY AND COLLECT TAXES, duties, imposts and excises . . .

"To coin money, REGULATE THE VALUES THEREOF . . .

"To make all laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into execution the foregoing powers
and ALL OTHER POWERS VESTED BY THIS CON-STITUTION IN THE GOVERNMENT OF THE UNITED STATES, OR ANY DEPARTMENT OR OFFICER THEREOF."

That is plain enough.

There is nothing in the Constitution that authorizes Congress to delegate its powers to the PRESIDENT, to the CABI-NET, to FRANKFURTERS, RICHBERGS or JOHNSONS.
NOW WHAT THE PEOPLE OF THIS COUNTRY SHOULD REMEMBER ON SEPTEMBER 17—and it would be well also if our cowed Congressmen recalled it before the next session—is this:

THE CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES HAS ABDICATED ITS CONSTITUTIONAL FUNCTIONS.
IT HAS DELEGATED, IN DEFIANCE OF THE CON-STITUTION, ITS LEGISLATIVE POWERS TO THE EX-ECUTIVE AND HIS ADVISERS.

Legislative measures of the gravest import to the people of this country are drawn up by men who have no seat in either House.

These measures are stamped MUST.

They are often passed WITHOUT EVER BEING READ.

confession from Speaker Byrns when he took the floor to sup-

For Republican Nomination
COUNTY COMMISSIONER
Bucks County

In order to avoid a halt in carrying on the administrative program of the County Commissioners, it has always been the policy of the Republican Party of Bucks County to re-elect at least one Commissioner to carry on and thus by his familiarity with the work, prevent the confusion, delay and expense which naturally would follow the election of three new commissioners—all unacquainted with the work in progress—to handle an unfinished program that had been devised and undertaken by their predecessors.

For this reason Norman Refsnyder, Republican County Commissioner, was endorsed for a second term by the Republican Harmony Primary Campaign Committee, in recognition of his honest, economic and very efficient administration during his first term
as County Commissioner.

Progress, economy and a low tax rate evidently have been the watchword that has guided Mr. Refsnyder and his associates in the administration of the county affairs during the past four years. That the county tax rate has been kept at the low rate of four mills, despite the depression, is one of the outstanding economic accomplishments of the present Board of County Commissioners. The tax rate, the bonded indebtedness and the per capita debt of Bucks County, which is a sixth class county, are lower than in any other sixth class county in the state save one.

The work of the County Commissioners in Bucks County is diversified, continuous in character and covers a large field. Mr. Refsnyder's life-long acquaintance with public affairs,
coupled with his intimate knowledge of the many responsibilities of this office, all redound to the wisdom for his re-election.

Mr. Refsnyder will also be commended to the voters because in addition to the splendid record he has made as County Commissioner, his other training includes the twenty-five years as foreman in the Freed Brothers Shoe Factory, his service as an assessor in Richlandtown from 1913 to 1919 and seven years spent in the United States Department of Internal Revenue from 1922 to 1929.
Mr. Refsnyder was born in Ottsville, Tinticum Township, and has been a resident of Bucks County all of his life.

ton, According to Announcement

MORRISVILLE MEETINGS

MORRISVILLE, Sept. 12—The old
Lincoln Highway between Janney Station and Fallsington will be widened for four lanes of traffic, the same width as the road is now between Morrisville and Fallsington. This announcement was made at the monthly meeting of the Morrisville Chamber of Commerce held in the community house last night. Edgar T. Snipes, prominent Bucks County attorney, is president of the commerce body and he presided at the meeting.

Mr. Snipes reported that he had conferred with the engineers of the Highway Department and that he had been informed bids will be advertised for this year but the work will not be actually done until early in 1936. The plans also call for the changing of the route. The road will branch off to the north at or near Oxford Valley and come in at Fallsington. It is planned to use the old strip for eastbound traffic and the northern route for westbound. With the completion of this work the highway will have four lanes for traffic between the Philadelphia city line and Morrisville.

The members also discussed the condition of East Bridge street, North Delmorre avenue and Pennsylvania avenue north of Trenton avenue, and it was voted to have president Snipes again take up the matter of making these improvements with the State Highway Department.

Franklin Kirby of Fallsington was elected to membership.

WOMEN'S LEAGUE HEARS REVISION DISCUSSION

Advocates and Opponents of Constitutional Convention
Address Newtown Meeting

CANDIDATES ARE HEARD

NEWTOWN, Sept. 12—That in 1929
under Republican rule the consumers tax represented only 30 per cent. of the national revenue, while today, under Democratic rule it is 60 per cent.; that the holding of a state constitutional convention at this time would mean not only the complete centralization of power and authority in Harrisburg, but also among other evils would bring the impracticable experiments of the "New Deal" into the basic law of Pennsylvania, were the noted features of an address made by Thomas B. Stockham, state representative from Bucks County, against constitutional revision at a meeting of the League of Women Voters of Bucks County, held here, yesterday.

Mrs. William B. Stuckert, the League president, called the meeting, which convened in the Friends Meeting House, for debate on revision and to afford the candidates of all political affiliations, for nomination for county offices at the coming primary election,
an opportunity to tell of their qualifications and aims.

Mrs. Thomas Ross, Doylestown, and a member of the league, was selected to speak in favor of revision and Mr.
Stockham, whose opposition to holding a constitutional convention is well known, had been invited to talk against revision. He was the first speaker.

He said in part:
"Governor Earle demands revision
because he says he wants to increase the borrowing capacity of the state;
secure greater tax levying power; obtain centralization of government;
give greater power to the Governor;
extend authority of the legislature, put a curb on the courts and make of relief a permanent power.

"None of these proposals are at all necessary and were only conceived by the Democratic Administration at Harrisburg for the purpose of obtaining complete centralization of power and authority.

"The present constitution provides for a pay-as-you-go method of conducting the affairs of the state and limits the borrowing capacity of the state to $1,000,000. The authorities at Harrisburg want to increase the borrowing capacity of the state to at least $250,000,000 and then some.

"The administration at Harrisburg
wants to ape the Washington administration and seeks a change in the constitution to bring all of the impracticable expedients of the New Deal into the basic law of Pennsylvania. They would engulf the state with debt and increase our taxes to an unbelievable amount.

"At the last session of the legislature they tried to bring about a centralization of tax collection which would have cost the taxpayers thousands of dollars but the bill was defeated by the Republican senate. They are seeking a change in the constitution in order not only to extend the term of the governor but to give the governor more power over the legislative branch of the government, particularly in the way of dictating legislation and the enactment of new laws.

"The revisionists would do away with grand juries and otherwise curb the courts in the administration of justice. That is nothing more or less than tyranny.

"By centralization of government
they mean the creation of new departments and bureaus and the employment of a large army of officials and clerks to man them. All of this at the

STUPID POTATO CONTROL

If an enemy had plotted to bring the agricultural adjustment administration into disfavor with everybody, he could not have hit on a better plan than that hatched up by congress in putting the potato-growing industry under AAA control. If the scheme works, its success will be greeted by howls of derision and protest from most of the potato growers and all of the consumers.

Hitherto the adjusting done by the AAA has been a pleasant sort of voluntary arrangement permitting the farmers who wanted to be "adjusted" to make contracts with the government and leaving all others to their traditional independence. That was the way with the corn-hog and the wheat deals.

But under the newest AAA venture the potato growers are to be regimented, from the big co-op corporation operator down to the homesteader who has the luck to raise five bushels from as many rows along the back fence.

Each may raise his quota, and if he tries to put over anything contrary to the law he may have the choice of paying $1,000 fine or spending a year in jail!

The governmental, if not the political machine, required to line up the more than 6,000,000 potato growers and to assign to each his quota will be a joy to politically-minded officialdom. The AAA will figure out how much normal potato production in the whole United States is to be cut. State quotas will be assigned. State officials will split up the quotas among the counties and county officials will round up the individual farmers and apportion the amount each farmer may sell.

The farmer takes all the chances. He may not be able to raise as much as his quota. He has to gamble on weather and bugs and disease. If he has a good crop, the surplus can not be locked up in a bonded warehouse. A last year's potato has even less commercial value than the proverbial last year's bird's nest.

The excess not permitted to be sold except subject to a prohibitive tax of three-fourths of a cent a pound will be practically wasted if it is not bootlegged to market in defiance of the law.

And the result? Doubling the price of potatoes. How the housewives will cheer at this announcement!

If the supreme court by a well-timed decision, puts this act of congress into the discard, it will be doing a kindness to:

- 1.—The AAA.
- 2.—The Roosevelt administration.
- 3.—The public.

From a cursory scanning of the headlines it appears that the administration now has power to control the coal industry, the banks, social security, billions of dollars, and world peace.

One can't have everything, and if Britain must have a new $750,000,000 navy it will have to try to make out with the old war debt.

It's got so that young people will do anything to get a perfect mate except deserve one.

Congress has adjourned, but the supreme court will meet soon to clean up the mess.

Science proves insects have no sense of time, and picnic lunch time proves they do.

"CAST INTO EDEN" BY HENRY C. ROWLAND

CHAPTER XX

Linda's hand still rested on his shoulder. Fine shivers ran through Jerome. He held himself rigidly like the thoroughbred he was. This last episode, he knew, had been the final touch to break down the restraint in which Linda had held herself. Following immediately the tremendous nervousness when they expected to be flung into shreds by the tough liana in the enormous grip of the frenzied giant ape . . . or torn to shreds by his nearly grown offspring . . . had stripped them of the last lingering tie to civilized control.

Jerome knew his problem was less one of ethics than of kindness, fair play, sportsmanliness. It was not a question of conventionality, propriety, etc., but of Linda's future welfare. If there had been some authority there to marry them it would have made no difference. He was not in a position to provide for her needs, once they got away from that place, nor could she provide for herself. For the moment he was not only in honor but in kindness bound to protect her, from danger and from sorrow; from gorillas and from himself.

His determination would have stood fast, but it was helped by a tremendous roar from the gloom outside, and the sudden crashing of underbrush. Jerome sprang to the door, to close it. But what sounded like a furious and determined pursuit, first in the crackling underbrush and then through the trees, was rapidly distancing itself.

He closed the door and turned, smiling. "Do you get that, Linda?"

"Looks as if the old man had detailed himself our guardian."

"He doesn't intend that the Racketeer shall hang round here. But I doubt if it's on our account. It wasn't this afternoon."

"You mean he didn't want his bad actor of a son on forbidden ground?"

"That's how it looks to me. These apes have had the 'keep off the grass' order whaled into them with that whip in there. They know they haven't any business on the house premises. They couldn't resist giving us the once over, and they fell for the sugar and syrup. But the plantation is still taboo in their simian minds."

"That makes sense," she admitted. "For the Racketeer to trespass, then beat his chest and boast about it was just more than his Old Papa could bear. Well, let's hope he runs him ragged, then catches him and chokes the life out of him."

"He'd be apt to do the last if he could manage the first. Let's leave it to him."

They ate their supper. Jerome said presently: "I'll have to change my outline of the Professor's personality."

"To what?"

"To quite a different character. I no longer think he is a mere scientist."

"Why not?" She rested her elbows on the table and leaned forward.

"First, the way he has trained his apes. Such discipline couldn't be enforced by kindness. It would take harsh and repeated punishment. Second, that sign on the tree. And third, the way he goes off and leaves his place unguarded, unless by the gorillas."

"What about the sign?"

"Freely translated, it reads that anybody who touched the fruit of the tree would be surely terribly punished. That wouldn't mean much to a trespasser unless the owner had a wide local reputation to go through with it . . . make good his threat. The same dread of him would keep the island inviolate." Her grey eyes widened. "Perhaps he's a sort of magician." He is very likely believed to be, and that's enough for superstitious epigones. Once he got the reputation for Evil Eye and a vampire, these gorilla fanatics would be the final touch. The most hardened sea-going bandits and pirates and longshore ladrones would drown or die of thirst before they'd take a chance on landing here."

Linda nodded. "Sounds logical, Jerry."

"Especially as Mama Gorilla's little Kolo, that she sends rolling over and by a light back-handed swipe, could twist off the arms and legs of the biggest apes they've got over this side as easily as a little girl could wring a leg off her sawdust doll."

"And the gorillas would grow a few feet in the description of any visitor that stayed long enough to get a good look at them."

"Naturally. They'd be jinn, twenty feet high and the girth of a molasses vat. They'd cringe and mow and carry the Dueno round on their shoulders. They'd be his Calibans and slaves of the lamp."

"Jerry . . . you'd better not break open those chests after all."

"I've already been guilty of vandalism by cutting out those painted leather chair-backs to make you a cloak."

"If we see the Dueno first I'll take it off and put them back and fasten them with bamboo thorns, on the off chance he may not notice until we're on our way."

"And greet him naked? He could make one mouthful of you. With that steel hook . . ."

"Jerry . . . don't . . . Tomorrow we make that raft."

"We've got to break into the chests to manage it."

"Oh, dear, any way you fix it we're due to get in wrong . . . and now it's a Pandora proposition, too."

"The chests may be check-a-block with trouble just seeming to get out," Jerome admitted. "But I can capsize one or two and bash in the bottom. That's the only part not carved."

"Perhaps we better pass up the chests and stick it out. Somebody's bound to come."

"Everything comes to his him waits," Jerry quoted. "But the proverb doesn't say how much he may like it."

"What do you suppose his nationality is?"

"Hard to say. His library is in English, French, Spanish and German. The sign was in Spanish, of course, because this is the old Spanish Main. I've got a theory about that Tree of the Forbidden Fruit, too. I don't think it's a hybrid."

"What then?"

"Probably some very rare variety localized in a remote jungle where the conditions for its best development have to be just right. By some happy accident it 'pleased itself,' as French gardeners say, on this island."

"The seed or roots or something. A British Indian Army Colonel told me once in Singapore that in his grandfather's time scarcely any European had ever heard of a mangosteen . . ."

"What's that?"

He described this delicate and delicious tropical fruit, a taste of rapture picked out of its partition on an oyster fork.

"Queen Victoria offered . . . or more probably some rich new part of her making offered . . . an enormous reward for whoever could manage to have Her Majesty taste a mangosteen that was au point. It simply could not be done. The fruit had to be eaten when and where plucked, and at once."

"And you think this is like that?"

"Probably. It has every look of a natural fruit. The Dueno may have found it deep in some jungle on the other side of the world and brought back a seed or seedling."

Linda nodded. "We're getting his number, Jerry. A one-handed naturalist who is rich enough to buy an island this size and stock it with rare wild animals and so much feared by everything and everybody that he can go off and leave the place wide open and nothing to protect his precious forbidden fruit but a sign."

"And a bunch of gorillas," he reminded her.

"Yes, fruit eaters. As if he wanted to test their obedience."

"Which is to say their memory and self-control. That's an idea."

"You gave it to me, Jerry. I'm dumb about getting one of those things but if somebody starts me I burn it up. The more I think about this absent host of ours, the less I like the idea of him."

"So do I. But just what's in your mind?"

"The way he does things here . . . and doesn't do them. Especially the latter."

"For instance . . .?"

"Well, here's a spot so lovely that the first glimpse of it took our breath away. But when you come to examine it all the loveliness is natural beauty. Not one single detail of its charm has been added by the human touch. It all seems to have left its tenant cold. This house is just a well built shelter. The furniture is costly and heavy and uncomfortable. There's not a bright note in the place. Not a picture nor ornament of any sort. Nothing that's cheerful nor intimate nor livable. It's all forbidding . . . like that sign on the tree. There's a chilly threat about it."

"I've felt that all along."

"If he loved the place for its isolated beauty it would stick out here and there," she went on. "But it's not even the workshop of a scientist that loves his work. He hasn't any fondness for his pets. They are afraid of him. They were afraid of us at first and played furtive tricks on us. Then they began to feel a difference and came up and made friendly advances. But they are more afraid of him than fond of us."

He said slowly: "All true, Linda. The micawore at us at first, then cleared out. It looks as if he were a bad natured bird and therefore got on better with the master. I should say you'd put your finger on it. The Dueno is probably a scientific misanthropic grinch."

"There's another thing worth thinking about, Jerry. We haven't found a scrap to show his identity."

"That's so, too. No name in any of the books or on the provision crates and boxes. Nothing of a personal sort to give a hint about him. Not even a specimen of his handwriting."

"Well, I don't like it. At first I was afraid of the prowlers, until we found them out. Now I'm more frightened of him. More and more. This place has lost all its beauty for me. It looks cruel and terrible and I want to get away from it, and quick. Call it a hunch."

There was more to it than that, Jerome thought. He had felt the same almost from the start, but without knowing the real reason. Linda had expressed it.

ment last year and added that he expects this year will still be better.

The matter of building an outside entrance to the basement was discussed and it was left with the officers to take further action.

Several repairs were reported made to the building, and it was decided to make some changes to the roof. Iron gratings have been placed over the openings just outside the building as a safety measure.

Reports were also given by Mr. Sumner that the bowling alleys and billiard tables are being placed in first class condition and that the leagues will soon get under way. It was also stated that with the bowling alleys and theatre there the Community House should be self-supporting. The building was erected here to house the organizations of the borough and a number have quarters there.

Mayor Stockham, who is one of the representatives from the Episcopal Diocese, reported that he is still working on the plan to raise funds with which to pay off the old debts which accumulated during the depression. Mr. Stockham, some time ago, received several substantial donations for this cause and he is still at work trying to raise additional money for the same purpose.

The purpose of the building is to make it a real community center and all proceeds received from the theatre and bowling are used to pay for the operation of the building.

Several speakers will address the meeting of the Morrisville Fish and Game Protective Association to be held in the club's quarters in the Community House Monday night, October 7. Charles Wessel, chief of game preparation of Pennsylvania, and Roy Cramer, Division Game Protector, are expected to be among the visitors present. An interesting program is being arranged and the committee is considering the showing of motion pictures at this meeting.

Many other activities are being planned by the club and these include field trials, a bench show September 21 and 22, on the Edgewood Road; holding a trap, gopher and dead mark shoot on Bob White's farm, September 29, and a surf party to Island Beach, Sunday, October 6.

The club is also organizing a bowling league to play at the Community House, with Earl Harrop, Anthony Thornley, Philip Marciano and Walter Wickham in charge. Benjamin W.

Elsenbrey and William Mason, Jr., are field trials. Walter Wickham and Earl in charge of the trap shoot and Rob Harrop are arranging for the surf party. Bayles will have charge of the party.

MEXICO TAKES 10 GRIDIRON AS LATEST

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 12.—(INS)—"Dixie" Howell will lead another invasion of California. He will take his University of Mexico team to Los Angeles for a game with Occidental College in the Coliseum, September 21.

This team like the Alabama team last Fall will line up victory-minded. Playing "Dixie" Howell football, it will strive to win its first international intercollegiate game. Five years ago, in the Coliseum, it held Occidental to a 31 to 6 score. It achieved something like a triumph in scoring first, following a march of 40 yards.

A squad of 30 players will make the trip.

Yale football, hitherto the model at the University of Mexico, went into the discard the moment "Dixie" Howell took charge. He substituted Alabama-Notre Dame formations and technique. Plus this, he introduced some of his own ideas.

Howell knew little or no Spanish, but he spoke a subtler language of understanding—football. And he initiated his task as coach by teaching through the force of example. When he wished a back to run the right way he took the ball and dashed out around the end or past tackle. He showed his charges how to swerve, how to throw the defense off balance and he aimed to teach them how to think faster than the other fellow.

He himself illustrated his way of passing. There was a youngster named Lang, half Mexican, half English. Howell waltz his hero. He was soon throwing strikes too.

Charlie Marr, also of Alabama, the line coach, introduced diplomacy into coaching. A gentleman, he taught football like a gentleman. He knew the way straight to the affections of the Mexican boys. For him this youth was football-minded too and he wanted them to love the game as he loved it. His charges responded with a rush of emotion. When he fell sick with intestinal trouble they hovered around the American hospital. Those that got into the sickroom sat there gazing at him adoringly.

Against Occidental, the University of Mexico team will be choofy of the Alabama spirit of fight. Howell and Marr will imbue them with speed, mental as well as physical.

One of the most interesting experiments in football this year is underway at the National Stadium. Here is a squad of Mexicans getting up-to-date on the game. How they love it! It is for them, as they call it, "the sport of men."

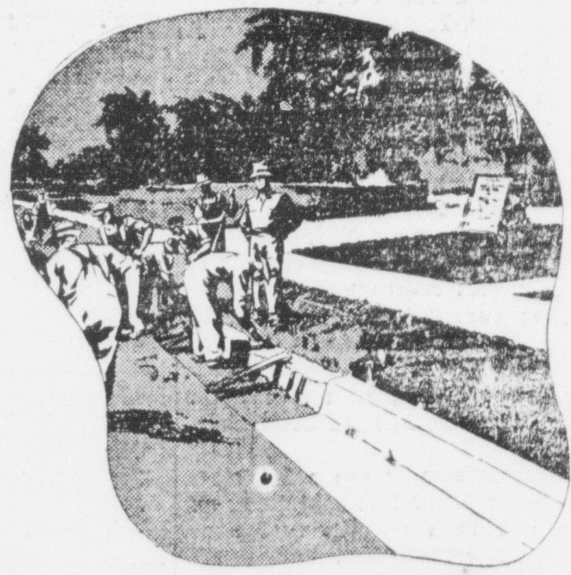

Their eyes pop when "Dixie" Howell shoots a pass. His swerving style of running enraptures them. Detail by detail they copy the man who booted the ball 80 yards against Tennessee in 1933. Marr holds his linemen in the hollow of his hand. This man was born to make his way with Latin Americans. He illustrates Ambassador Morrow's theory of parity. He knows no barriers.

GET LASTING BENEFIT FROM RELIEF LABOR!

Build Curbs and Gutters and Other Improvements Your Community Needs

WHY not use Federal Relief Funds to replace old, unsightly curbs and gutters with concrete. Or build needed new concrete curbs, sidewalks, drainage structures, park improvements, swimming pools, and other beneficial, permanent civic improvements. Unskilled labor can do the work. Maximum labor on the job! Something worthwhile to show for the expenditure!

Hundreds of other cities are grasping this opportunity to get improvements that would have to be built soon anyway. So can your city.

You, Mr. Taxpayer, can help your community obtain needed permanent improvements like those mentioned above. Make known to your local officials and relief authorities the betterments you think should be included in your community's relief program. They will be glad of your help.

port the compromise on the utilities holding company bill (an executive MUST bill):

"I AM NOT GOING TO DISCUSS THE MERITS OF THIS BILL FOR TWO REASONS. IN THE FIRST PLACE, I DO NOT HAVE THE TIME AND I AM FRANK TO SAY THAT I DO NOT KNOW ENOUGH ABOUT THE BILL TO DISCUSS ITS MERITS."

In the Congressional Record for the next day the Speaker's remarks are revised officially as follows:

"NOW, I CANNOT DISCUSS THE MERITS OF THE BILL. I HAVE NOT THE TIME AND CANNOT ENTER INTO A DISCUSSION OF ITS DETAILS."

Here was a bill that involved the fate of the investments of millions of utilities security holders which the Speaker of the House of Representatives confessed HE PRACTICALLY KNEW NOTHING ABOUT!

* * *

On July 18 a bill was before the House depriving citizens of the right to sue the Government in certain cases.

Representative John B. Hollister, of Ohio, asked the House:

"HOW MANY OF YOU CHAIRMEN OF COMMITTEES HERE TODAY KNOW WHO PREPARED THE BILLS YOU HAVE INTRODUCED IN THE LAST TWO YEARS, HOW MANY OF YOU EVEN READ THEM... AND HOW MANY OF YOU, WHEN YOU VOTED FOR THEM, VOTED YOUR REAL CONVICTIONS?"

According to the Washington correspondent of the New York Herald Tribune, "HE RECEIVED NO ANSWER."

These facts are too enormously flagrant and patent to need any comment except this:

THE SEVENTY-FOURTH CONGRESS HAS REPUTATED ARTICLE I, SECTIONS 1 AND 8, OF THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES.

Therefore it is clearly up to the people of the United States on September 17 to ask their Congressmen this question:

"WILL YOU OR WILL YOU NOT CONTINUE TO DELEGATE YOUR CONSTITUTIONAL FUNCTIONS IN THE SECOND SESSION OF THE CURRENT CONGRESS TO A GROWING CAESARIAN OLIGARCHY? ARE YOU FOR THE CONSTITUTION OR DO YOU AIM AT HAVING IT LAPSE?"

The American people have a right to know NOW whether they are living under a CONSTITUTION or a CABAL.

"MY FAVORITE DISH --and-- HOW I PREPARE IT!"

—BY—
MRS. GEORGE W. BRUDEN
241 CEDAR STREET

The recipe I prize most, and also one of the favorites with my family, is for a salad, the main ingredients of which are crushed pineapple and grated carrots. It's not only tempting and appetizing, but healthful as well.

The ingredients are:

1 package lemon gelatine

1 package orange gelatine

1 pint can crushed pineapple

2 large carrots

4 cups hot water.

I first dissolve the lemon gelatine in two cups of hot water; then dissolve the orange gelatine in the same quantity of hot water. I mix these two liquids in a large container.

Next the pint of crushed pineapple is added, and then two large carrots grated in the mixture.

After the gelatine-salad becomes firm, I divide it into portions, and place each section on a crisp lettuce leaf. This quantity provides ten large portions.

One of the finest things about this salad, in addition to its being appetizing and good for anyone, is that the ingredients are available the year 'round.

expense of the taxpayer. And they advocate revision in order to make of relief a permanent policy. In other words to establish a department of relief. You all will agree with me when I say relief should be under local control. Then aping the Washington government they prate about what they call social security. Massachusetts has enacted almost every known type of so-called social security legislation. Yet the wages in the industries of Pennsylvania, under the present constitution, are 18 per cent. higher than those paid in Massachusetts. In 1920 Pennsylvania had 16,135 manufacturing plants and in 1930 had 16,645 or an increase of 510 plants. Massachusetts with her so-called social security laws in 1920 had 10,654 manufacturing plants and only 8,778 in 1930 or a loss of 1,876 plants which had to leave the state or close because of inability to live because of those laws.

"May I ask where do the women come in under the protection afforded by our present constitution? Why the women are the beneficiaries of 80 per cent. of one hundred billion dollars worth of life insurance, 650 per cent. of 14 and a half billion in savings accounts, 48 per cent. of all of the railroad stocks are owned by women, and likewise 44 per cent. of the public utilities securities and 48 per cent. of all of the real estate in the country is in the names of women. All of this would be jeopardized by the kind of constitution revision the federal and Harrisburg governments have in mind. Certainly you would not vote for a constitutional convention at this time.

"This is not the time in the midst of all the uncertainties and turmoil, we are experiencing, to make a revision of the constitution. It is a good constitution as it is—so let it stand."

Mrs. Thomas Ross, Doylestown, espousing revision in reply to Mr. Stockham, among other things said:

"Governor Earle is not proceeding any differently than did Governor Sprunt when in 1918 he advocated a revision of the constitution. Governor Sprunt appointed a committee to draw up a proposal for a change. Besides the excuse that this is not the time for revision is not a good one. All constitutions are the outgrowth of revolutions. The only time to change a constitution is in a tempestuous time.

"The present constitution was adopted in 1873. The state then had a population of 3,000,000. Today our population is 10,000,000. The income of the state in 1873 was $70,000,000. Today it is $379,000,000. We had dirt roads, oil lamps and coaches and carriages then. Today we have radios, railroad trains and aeroplanes. The world is moving faster and we have to change the constitution in order to meet changed conditions. We need changes in government. We have 6,000 tax levying units. One of the arguments of those opposed to revision is that the constitution is susceptible of amendment. But it takes five years to amend the constitution."

KNOCK OUTS AND DOWNS ENLIVEN ST. ANN'S BOUTS

By T. M. Juno

Knockouts and knockdowns were plentiful last night in the amateur boxing bouts held in the St. Ann's outdoor arena, Wood street, as the Bristol amateur milmen stole the show from their rivals from Philadelphia. Over 1,000 spectators took every available seat and were thrilled at the amazing skill of the local novices.

Fifteen knock-downs were scored in the bouts and four of the bouts ended in knock-out victories. The Bristol youths won six of the mixed matches with opponents from the Quaker City and four of these came via the knock-out route. Two localities captured the votes of the judges while two others went down to defeat at the hands of battlers from the East Side Club, of Kensington.

Five of the Bristol triumphs went to simon pures wearing the Purple and Gold colors of the St. Ann's Athletic Association. The other, Harry Davis, a colored youth, fought under the colors of the Young Men's Excelsior Club. East Side had three victories and three losses while the Uptown Boys' Club had one representative and he won. The West Side Boxing Club failed to score a mark on the right side of the ledger in five bouts. Two of the St. Ann's boys went down to defeat.

Most interesting of the bouts was the come-back of "Johnny Dundee" Raccagno in the second set. In the last bouts, Raccagno was knocked out by Roosevelt Rowe in the first round although he for the full count while on one knee and appearing in line shape. Many spectators claim that Raccagno quit in the fight and razed him as he appeared in his corner before the gong sent him into action against Thomas Murphy of the West Side Club.

There was very little to the fight. Murphy landed but one blow during the first round and that was a light tap on Raccagno's shoulder. The rest of the round saw Murphy trying to evade that right hand punch of the Bristolian. In close quarters, Raccagno connected and the Quaker City youth hit the canvas but only took a short count. Raccagno chased his opponent and cornered him where he pummelled with both hands, the milling stopping when Murphy again went down. Before the gong sounded, Dundee finally landed his hay-maker and Murphy was stretched out on the bottom rope half in and half out of the right. Although the bell rang before Referee Charlie Daggett could complete his count of ten, Raccagno's hand was raised in token of victory.

The most surprising youngster of the evening was Mike Quici, St. Ann's, who knocked out Philip Foster of the West Side Club. These boys who weighed in at 147 pounds furnished the slugging match of the evening. Quici finished the Philadelphian in the second after he was felled twice in succession. In the first round, Foster was on the floor three times, making six knock-downs in the bout while it lasted.

Both gladiators started fast and furious. After a break out of a clinch, Quici's right caught Foster on the button, sending him to the canvas. Quici's slowness in getting to a neutral corner prevented him from a knock-out victory here. Foster rose at the count of nine and socked the localite with a left hook. In a fast mix-up in the center of the ring, Quici got Foster off balance and again the visitor was on the mat, although he arose before a count could be registered. Foster rallied towards the close of the round but three straight jabs from Quici's right put the invader on the floor for the third time and he was out as the bell sounded, ending the first round.

Foster was revived quickly and rushed Quici to the ropes. A short hook brought blood from Foster's nose. Here the Philadelphian began to play possum and caught Quici on the chin and the Bristolian went resting to the floor. He took the count of nine and was still dazed as he tried to clinch but Foster backed away and landed with everything behind his right. Quici went through the ropes and appeared completely out as Referee Daggett started his count. At five he held on to the ropes and his seconds were about to throw in the towel as Foster made another rush. But Quici, somehow or the other in his daze, stuck out his right which clipped Foster's jaw and put him out for the full count. The blow was unexpected to both fighters, Quici still being out on his feet as Foster was being counted out.

Harry Davis, the only colored Bristol boy to see action, knocked out his opponent, Tommy Boylan, of the West Side Club in the second round. A one-two punch to the jaw and stomach put the visitor on the floor after he had absorbed plenty of hard punishment in the first round. Both boys were lanky and had long reaches but the Bristol colored sensation was too much for south paw adversary.

That Davis would win the bout on a knock-out was imminent in the first canto. As the boys started from their corners, Davis tackled the West Side boy and both narrowly escaped being spilled. After the football tactics, Davis took a hard side punch from Boylan's left. Boylan followed with a short jab but a fast mix-up saw the West Sider end on the mat where he took the count of nine. Boylan took plenty of lefts and rights after he got to his feet but was successful in sinking his southpaw mit into Davis' stomach on two occasions.

Too many body punches finished the West Side representative in the second. He mixed it up with Davis in the center of the ring and received the worst of it and following this he took three hard rights from Davis which set him groggy. He sunk his left into Davis' mid-section but in doing so made himself wide open for Davis to land his one-two punch which marked finish to the bout.

Sammy Biaocchi, St. Ann's, a newcomer who fought for the A. A. U. for the first time, was the other representative of this borough to register a knock-out. He downed his man, John Fields, West Side, in the second round, after piling up a tremendous lead in the initial session.

Biaocchi started in the first round to sting his opponent with right hand punches. Before the first minute of milling was over, Biaocchi had slipped over three rights to send Fields to the floor for a count of eight. The visitors succeeded in tying up the Bristol warrior until he received his breath. As he tried to open up again Biaocchi rushed him to the ropes and there pounded him. But the Philadelphian was game and sent two straight hooks into Biaocchi's bread-basket before the bell was hammered by Timer Hanlon.

There was very little to the second round. Fields rushed out and beat up the St. Ann's battler in a little mixing in one corner of the ring. As they broke, Biaocchi sparred for an opening which came when Fields missed a hook, and two short hooks put the West Sider down while the referee tolled ten.

Harry DeFazio, who in the last bouts here, defeated Donato Sciarra, was again awarded a close decision. This time, the opponent was none other than Chet Castor, St. Ann's ace, who dropped his second fight, although again the Bristolian put up a stiff battle against a more experienced battler. DeFazio's hard rights to the stomach counted heavily in the scoring of the points and gave him enough points to carry the decision. Castor carried the first round, in the opinion of the writer and the Philadelphia youth was given the second and third cantoes.

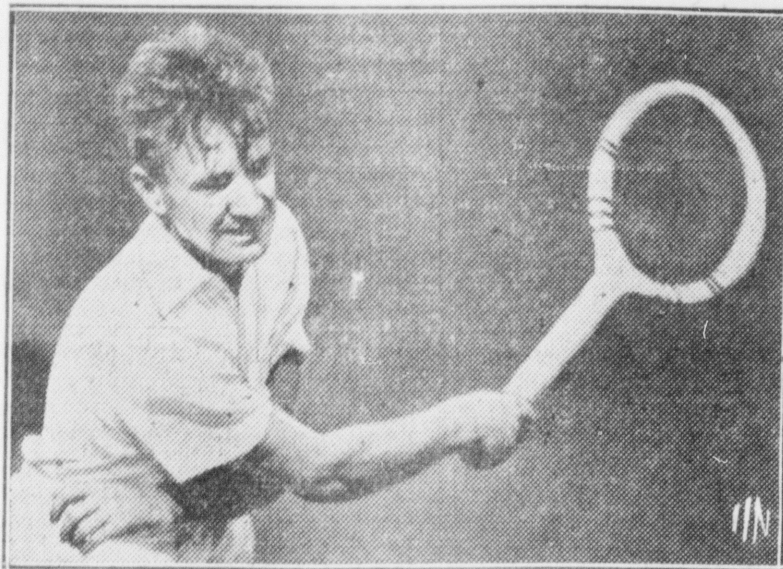

Castor put up a gallant rally at the start of the third and was gaining points in rapid succession when DeFazio put a hard right under the heart which slowed up the Bristol ice-carrier considerably. DeFazio caught Castor against the ropes before the close of the contest and there gave the hardest blows of the contest. Castor took the best the former amateur junior champion had to offer without wincing and came out best in a short exchange afterward.

The first was Castor's best session. In this round, he almost upset DeFazio when he hooked him while he had him against the ropes. The skill of the visitor enabled him to crawl out of the punches and then catch Castor unaware with a long left from the side. Castor had DeFazio's nose bleeding before the round closed.

The third straight victory was chalked up by the undefeated Al Paris, St. Ann's, glover. Paris' opponent was Russell Curry, East Side. Although Paris took the votes of the two judges and the referee, the decision was unpopular with the crowd.

Curry had in his possession the finest left jab exhibited here and he knew how to use it. When it was used it found its mark sometimes four and five times in fast succession without taking a return. Often Curry would surprise and swing a long right but it was his left which bothered Paris.

Paris landed the harder blows in the tilt and was the aggressor throughout. He started off like a wind-mill and beat Curry about the head with both fists. Paris sent his right into Curry's stomach but a jab brought blood to Paris' nose. The St. Ann's fighter missed a left and landed a light right but Curry retaliated with six jabs in fast order. Before Paris could back away, three more light jabs found their mark to the Bristolian's chin. Paris recuperated from the blows and slammed two rights to the jaw as the session came to a close.

A stinging right hook, staggered Paris at the start of the second and the East Side youth tricked Paris into three more jabs to the face. However, this failed to daunt the St. Ann's midman and before the close of the round had sent Curry about the ring with lefts and rights all over the body.

After Curry had opened with another jabbing attack at the start of the final round, Paris started a jab of his own which proved successful as it opened up Curry's face and a Paris hook found its mark to send Curry to the floor without a count. Curry took a severe beating while against the ropes as the bell rang to end the fight.

Vincent Della, St. Ann's orthodox leather-wielder, dropped a hair-line decision to William Linhardt, of the East Side Club. Up until the final session the bout was very close but the East-Sider sent Della to the floor with a right hook and from then on was master and hit Della hard and often. It was the last few minutes of fighting which gave the win to Linhardt. Both boys hard staggered each other several times during the fight.

Carlos Williams, East Side colored battler, hit Albert Hall, West Side, with everything but the ring-post but still couldn't put the West-Sider on the floor. Carlos' jab and right found its way into Hall's mid-section continually but the West Side boy kept taking it plenty and lost by a wide margin.

Action and plenty of it was exhibited in the Harry Graber-Robert Williams fracas. Graber is from the East Side Club with Williams coming from the Uptown Boys' Club. Winters took the decision of the officials after a close fight.

James Brushia, St. Ann's, made his debut against Clarence Jenkins, East Side, in the first bout with the local boy getting the decision after three rounds. Long rights to Jenkins' jaw gave Brushia the victory although he went down for a short time in the first. Brushia carried the first and second rounds with the third being even.

Officials of the bouts were: Judges, Jack McGinley and William Montgomery; referee, Charlie Daggett; timer, Thomas Hanlon; physician, Dr. Joseph Levy; announcer, Patsey Moffo; inspector, Julius Fineburg.

The next bouts will be held Monday evening, September 16.
